“Bowker IT is proud to sponsor the Lancaster Beer Festival”

bowker IT

I'd like to take the time to welcome you to Lancaster Round Table 23rd charity beerfest. We are looking to take this beerfest to new levels every year and have built upon the success that previous years have given us.

The money that you're helping us raise by having a pint or few with us this evening, goes to a long way to help local charities and good causes to happen in the local area. The sponsorship of the businesses that have supported us in enabling the event to happen is a major factor in providing the funds to put on this event for you.

In the current economic climate, all businesses are cutting back on both charitable donations and advertising spending. That is why colleagues and I would like to say a huge thank you to all the sponsors. Without their generous support, we would find it very hard to run the event.

We also wish all our customers a massive thank you for coming along and making this event what it is today. Make sure that you browse the programme to see which sponsors have made that amazing commitment to this event once again and hopefully show your appreciation when choosing to use their products, services or institutions.

It takes many months of planning and organising to run this event and all the time is given free by members of the Lancaster Round Table, wives, partners and Friends for which I thank. We strive to make it better every year by making changes that we think benefit the event for you. Things are developed not just for changing sake, but any ideas from you the customers are always taken onboard. Please, please take the time to give us feedback on the forms provided on the back of the programme or speak to one of the Tablers.

Please stop me to say hi when you see me, I am easy to spot when not slumped in the corner. I'll be the good looking one grinning from ear to ear through consumption and the only tabler working...AGAIN...!

I will of course take the credit and accept your kind offer of a pint...or..3 But only on the understanding that I drink on behalf of those who did the work, seeing as I am their master!

Whether it's your 1st or 23rd Lancaster beerfest, I would like to say a big thank you for supporting us by being here this evening. Enjoy the beer and please drink responsibly.

let's get ready for

The Beer Festival is brought about by months of meticulous planning and what you see around you in the Ashton Hall is the accumulation of hard work by many individuals giving up their spare time for no reward, other than knowing that their efforts will translate into raising lots of much needed funds for local charities and worthwhile causes.

As this year's Beerfest Convenor I would like to take the opportunity to show you a little of what goes on during the build-up to the Festival itself.

The planning and preparation began as early as the 2nd week after last year's Beerfest, with a meeting called the 'Beerfest Wash-up'. Despite its imaginatively titled name, this isn't when we do the tidying up (that happens all day on the Sunday straight after), but when all involved meet to discuss what went well, what went not so well and put forward ideas to improve the event the following year.

The Beerfest is then admittedly put to the back of our minds for the rest of the year, with only the odd mention – such as 'we really should be thinking about the Beerfest for next year by now', during the other fun events we attend within the Round Table calendar.

And so, it was in December 2011 that it was decided that I had better get my act together, and this is when the first letters were sent out to last year's supporters and sponsors, both thanking them for continued support over the years and unashamedly asking for more money towards this upcoming event. After the festive season ended it was back to the real nitty gritty of organisation as the dawning reality finally hit me that the Lancaster Beer Festival was only 8 weeks away.

At this point I was ready to go and sit in the corner of a room and gently sob until it all went away, but luckily for festival goes far and wide I decided against that particular route and instead convened a Beerfest Committee, consisting of the most ardent Tablers committed to making 2012 one of the best years for the Beerfest we have ever known – otherwise known as the Table members who don't get out much or the ones who could be bothered.

But please do not let my rhetoric fool you; this band of tirelessly committed individuals have done me proud helping to sort out the finer details of organisation and planning and have been a great help. From then on up until the week before the event the rest was down to me – chasing up sponsors, liaising with sign makers and graphic designers to finalise the printed materials such as the programme you are reading now and making sure that all the Breweries were on board and knew where and when to deliver.

This now brings me to the week of the festival, which is yet to pass as I write this, but of course has already happened as you read these words. As the pictures you see on the page will demonstrate, taken during the set up last year, quite a lot goes into the few days before the event happens. On the Monday we bring in all the racking for the barrels, the bar (which needs to be put together) and the pumps. We also take delivery (hopefully) of all the Beers and other drinks as well as the glasses needed to drink them from.

The Tuesday onwards is a combination of fitting things together, putting up the banners and boards displaying the logos of our kind sponsors and quite often blind panic when we sometimes wonder if it will all come together in time. Invariably, and sometimes we're not sure just quite how, it does all come together thanks to the effort of lots of individuals offering their time for free, who somehow mould into a winning team greater than the sum of its parts.

Finally, after spending the 3 nights of the actual Beerfest itself having a great time, creating memories which will stay with us for many years, the time to clear up comes on the Sunday. Empty barrels are taken away (always the sign of a good event when they are empty!), the bar taken down and everything put into storage, except for the fine men and women who helped make it happen in the first place.

To all of those who help I say a massive thank you as it wouldn't happen without you – and to those who attend and show us the effort was all worthwhile, an even big thanks!

FROM ONE EXTREME... ...TO ANOTHER

Original Budvar is rightly hailed as one of the world's great lager classics, and Extreme Budvar is the unpasteurised version that captures all the magic of this fabled beer and it tastes just as if you were drinking it from the brewery tap.

It's brewed with the same care and patience as Budvar Original, has the same ABV of 5 and uses the same ingredients in a 100 day brewing cycle. The big difference is that being unpasteurised it is the Peter Pan of beers, never having to grow up, a beer of almost otherworldly freshness and purity.

This is why it is only available here in small quantities and in outlets where they know how to handle beer of this quality, like this one.

Year of Sport 2011-2012

One of the highlights of the annual calendar for many Tablers is the varied and interesting sporting events which take place during the year, both on a regional and national scale.

For example, Area 34, of which Lancaster Round Table is based, encompasses Tables from Blackburn, Clitheroe, Rossendale, Preston and Blackpool, and has a continuing sporting tradition of competition between the different Round Tables every year running between May and April.

Each respective Round Table sends out teams along the course of the year to compete for both individual sports trophies and to collect points as a team for the prestigious crown of overall sporting Table for the year. 'Sports' are as varied as Golf, Ten Pin Bowling, Poker, Cricket, Football, Pool and Basketball, to name a few, so the chances are you will experience something new. The emphasis is always on having fun, though there is always a competitive edge to each event.

At the moment, as I write this with two events of the year to go, we are in an almost identical position as last year in the area sports trophy, with Lancaster at the top of the table. This year it is a lot closer, with the Area Ten Pin Bowling due to take place just before the Beerfest, and the last event hosted in Lancaster in March, it could go right down to the wire.

If we manage to do well in those last two events then Lancaster will be crowned Area Champions once again for the second year in a row – even more remarkable when you consider we had never even won the Trophy before last year despite its long history.

Every September the Area sporting calendar is turned on its head, as our closest rivals from Area join forces with us to compete against other Areas around the country in an event appropriately titled 'National Sporting Weekend'.

Last year this national event took place in Leeds, moving on from Lancaster as the host in 2010. Over 20 Areas made up teams from all over the UK and our very own Area 34 earned a respectable 4th place overall, winning the flagship event of the 5-a-side football along the way, with myself and two other Lancastrian Tablers Ben Robinson and Ken Parker making up the bulk of the winning team.

This proved to be a proud moment for us and the rest of the team as we were presented with our medals and the Trophy by the world championships gold medal winner Kriss Akabusi, who was guest speaker for the night at the after event Gala dinner.

If you would like to know more about Round Table and the sporting events we participate in then just ask any of the Table members you see around the Beerfest hall and they will happily point you in my direction.

My Guarantee to new members

ROUNDTABLE

by Lewis

Last year a few of you may have read my article on what I get from being in Lancaster Round Table. But as far as I am aware, none of the people who read that article were moved to find out more about regular meetings each month, or follow the lead of at least one of our members and spend every night seeking out a table event or fundraising opportunity somewhere between John O'Groats and Land's End;

bowling and poker;

- Find out that international Tablers are even more insane than the British ones, and witness their amazing hospitality first hand;

whisky than Roger, or more vodka than Andy – but you will have fun trying;

- Have much trouble finding someone to get go to the pub with, even on a work night, even during a work day;

us, or even join. "Sure," you must have thought "that's his experience, but there's no guarantee I'd like it". That's true – there is no guarantee you'd like it. In life there are few guarantees, however here and now I'm prepared to make some:

If you join Lancaster Round Table I guarantee you will:

- Find your own level of table commitment – whether you choose just to attend the two

- Spend more time at Lancaster Brewery than some of the people who work for it;
- Buy a dinner jacket (if you don't have one already) and wear it to a variety of formal dinners, at which Round Table does its best to single-handedly control the nation's chicken population;
- Be press-ganged into helping Lancaster win its third successive area sports trophy, in a variety of sporting events including football, tennis, go-karting, ten-pin

- Help to determine which charities and good causes will benefit from the money raised at the Beerfest.

If you join Lancaster Round Table I guarantee you will not:

- Be asked to perform funny handshakes, rattle tins in a supermarket, or be stuck with a bunch of boring people interested only in networking for business reasons;
- Be able to drink more beer than Matt, more

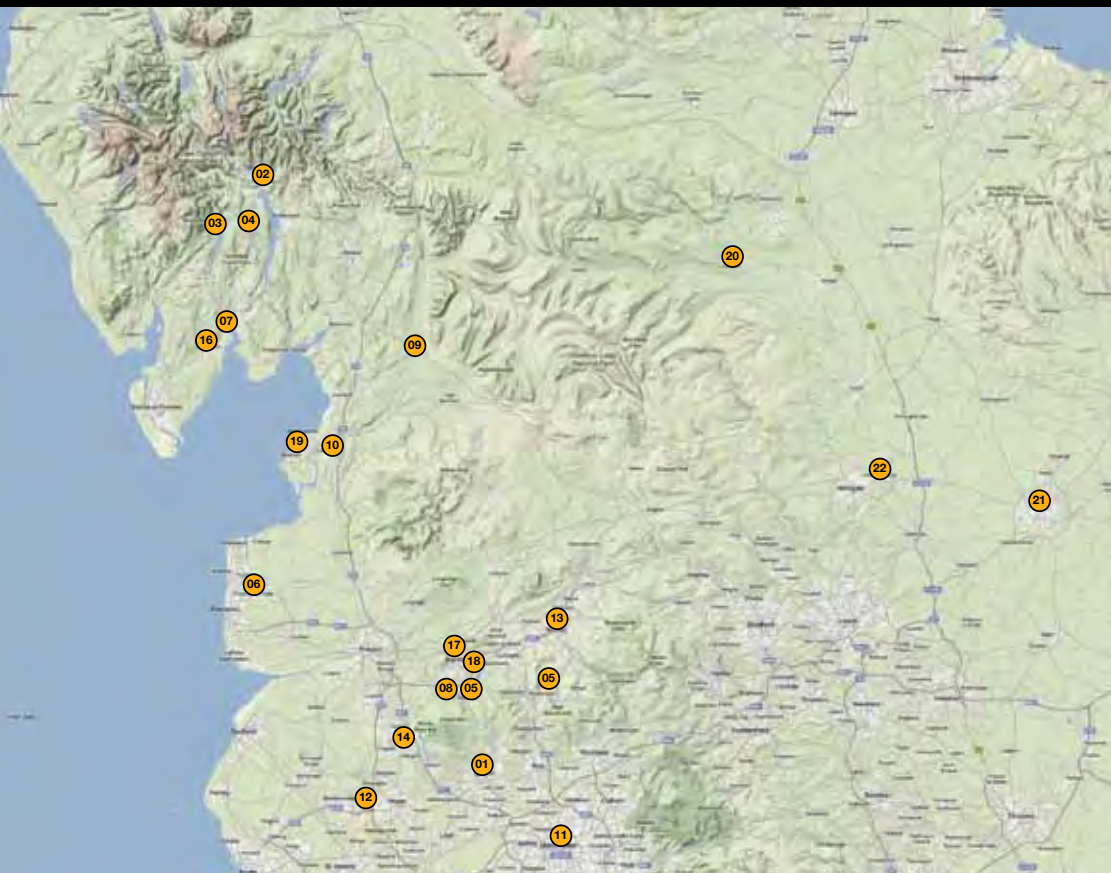

- Be upset that you're working during the Beerfest – as we have more fun, and drink more beer, than the punters do; Have had any experience like it.

If you're interested in joining Table either speak to one of the tablers working tonight, or email info@lancasterbeerfest.org

REAL ale in real Lancashire

Where is Lancashire?

The land that came to form the County Palatine of Lancashire began to be assembled shortly after the Norman Conquest in 1066 when Roger of Houndesbrough acquired all the territory from the River Mersey in the south to the River Ure in the North. This land known as the 'Honor of Lancaster', after Roger established the administrative centre in Lancaster, included Furness, Cartmel, Lonsdale, as well as Manchester, Stockport and Liverpool. It was under King Henry II's Reign that the term County of Lancashire was first used to describe this area. The importance of Lancashire to the Crown was formalized when in the 14th Century Lancashire was granted Palatine status and with it extraordinary powers granted to the Duke of Lancaster.

When County Councils were established in the late 19th century, they were devised upon the traditional territories within the counties and therefore Lancashire continued to encompass that Furness peninsula. The 1974 administrative counties did not alter the traditional boundaries of Lancashire. Whilst new administrative and unitary authorities have been established since 1974 they have not changed that geographical nature of the original County Palatine of Lancashire. The Lancashire Cup, now in its 2nd year, has been organised by the Lancaster 160 Round Table as part of its annual Beer Festival with the aim of getting Lancashire Brewers together in one place celebrating the great product of our County whilst fundraising for local charities.

A panel of independent judges (not from the Lancashire Brewers competing), consisting of some of the top palates and recognised names in the world of beer, including the celebrated beer writer Jeff Pickthall, have been asked to judge the six categories of the competition (Best, Bitter, Premium, Strong, Porter Mild & Stout and Speciality), with the overall Supreme Champion of the Lancashire Cup named from the Class winners.

As with the inaugural trophy last year Brewers from Old Lancashire have also been invited to compete and the competition boundaries include that of the County Palatine of Lancashire (see left).

Brewing in Lancashire can be traced back well over two hundred years, and in the Lancashire Cup we have two of the oldest brewers in Lancashire. With over 350 years of combined brewing experience Daniel Thwaites of Blackburn (est. 1807), J.W Lees of Middleton N. Manchester (est. 1827) representing the old guard of brewing with established beers and reputations.

These regional giants are however equals in the Lancashire Cup with brewers that have been established only a few months or years. Cross Bay Brewery is the youngest of this year's completion, brewing for the first time in 2011. The smallest brewers this year are Greenodd, Hopstar and Mayflower all of which are around one hundred times smaller in brew length than that of Thwaites.

Brewers were asked to submit just two beers each, for which they were paid a nominal fee to cover their costs. Those taking up the chance to compete were offered additional spaces in the competition but in the spirit of charity and fairness each additional beer was donated free of charge to the Round Table.

In addition to all the Lancashire Cup entrants we have decided to also include some guest beers on the roster from outside the competition boundaries. These fortunate few will not be entered into the competition, but are here to give us an example of some of the finest beers from elsewhere in the country, so please enjoy – responsibly of course.

You Could Be Here Next Year

from as little as £125 Sponsorship, your business could be in the hands of almost 4000 potential customers!

Thank You to everyone

A message of thanks from the Beerfest Coordinator

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who has helped to once again organise and put together Lancaster Beer Festival, and to all of those that have taken the time to come and visit us once again and try our humble collection of beers, helping us to raise money.

There are a few that I would like to mention individually though, as their contribution this year has been invaluable in helping me to get everything together while keeping my sanity (just!).

To all the Local Businesses who have once again sponsored the event and continue to support us every year – please do not underestimate your importance in allowing us to put this festival on and I am overwhelmed by the way you always pull together, despite difficult times, to help us raise money for the community. Despite getting a few perks here and there many of the businesses do not gain anything financially from sponsoring us so for that you need to be commended.

Bowker IT deserve a special mention as it took literally milliseconds for them to agree to be main sponsors again, taking a huge weight off my mind, as do security firm FGH who were equally quick to commit their services for free for the second year running. SHP Solutions should also be thanked again as last year they donated the stillages and racking for the bar area, saving us more money this year and for years to come and have generously donated more money to the fund as well.

To the Breweries, a Beer Festival simply wouldn't happen without the help we get from you, many of you offering your produce at reduced prices and in some cases for free – the rich selection of Beers you have to offer with your careful attention to the brewing process means there is always a taste to suit every pallet. Particular thanks go to Lancaster Brewery, Thwaites, Cross Bay Brewery, Budvar, York Brewery and Mitchell's.

Beer writer and main judge in this year's Lancashire cup Jeff Pickthall for his guidance and support in ensuring the smooth running of the competition. Also thanks to everyone else who took time out to come and help the judging on the Thursday afternoon and to Classic Engraving in Morecambe for producing the winners trophies.

Adrian at Your Design Partner for once again ensuring the marketing material was designed with flair and more importantly on time. Also thanks to Thumbprint from Cornerstones who are helping with the cloakrooms, The Dalton Rooms for the food and A1 Supa Skips for providing the bottle bins and refuse collection during the clear up.

A very warm and special thank you needs to be given to the RAG too, who every year come along and give up their free time to ensure we have staff to serve you with beers. We are humbled by your endless enthusiasm for the task.

We can't forget to thank the council either – every year they welcome the event with open arms and this year have been as enthusiastic as ever to ensure we have everything we need. Special mention needs to go to Michelle and Sue who have helped me to familiarise myself with the forms and requirements for putting the festival on in the Town Hall.

Round Table members – you all deserve every bit of praise you get for helping to organise the Beer Festival and more importantly making sure the funds we raise go to those in the local community who need it the most. In particular I would like to thank those who were on the Beerfest committee with me this year; Jonny, Kevan, Mark, Lewis and Andy with special mention to Ben who by far raised the most money in sponsorship of any of us. Keep up the good work all of you.

Behind every great man though is an even better woman and none of the Table members would be able to achieve what we do without the unwavering support of our better halves. All year long they put up with us bringing tales back into the house of the fun times we are having and it is true to say that a lot of Table events wouldn't happen the way they do without the ladies helping out, and once again they are here in force helping at the Beer Festival.

They truly are the rock upon which our foundations are built so huge thanks, hugs and kisses to every one of you, in particular to my own rock Debbie who has put up with all my late nights and grumpiness while I organise the festival.

To everyone else who hasn't been individually mentioned, please do not think your contribution is any less significant – in many ways it is more important than ever. To you I also say thanks!

P.S - See you all next year service to the community

The Beerfest is three days of fun and hard work, preceded by a lot of preparation. But, after everyone has gone home, after the hall has been tidied up, after the hangovers have subsided and Tabler's wives are speaking to them again; then comes the real hard work.

Lancaster Round Table No 160 Charitable Trust is a registered charity. The members of Lancaster Round Table take seriously their responsibility to ensure that the monies raised by the Charity, thanks to the generosity of the local community and our sponsors, are given to deserving causes. Each potential donation, whether it be a request received by Table or a cause identified by one of the Table members, is discussed and voted upon during one of our regular business meetings.

At the last Beerfest we handed out a number of large cheques on stage to local good causes and charities including the Lancaster Boys & Girls Club, Thumbprint, Fragments and the Lancaster University RAG.

Donations made during the year include sizeable pledges to funds for two local young people affected by illness - see www.hannahwestworth.com and www.ryanstanfordappeal.org.uk for details of their situations and how you too could contribute.

We made a number of other donations including Morecambe Road School, Heysham Army Cadets, Bowland Mountain Rescue, North Lancs Counselling Service and sponsoring the Lancaster City Council Home Safety Quiz for children.

In addition we actually got our hands dirty, in what many would say was a welcome return to the old days of Round Table. In response to a plea for help from a disabled gentleman moving into a bungalow, not only did we provide the paint; we also turned up en masse to apply it (with varying degrees of skill) to the walls.

Thank you once again for supporting our charity and allowing us to make a difference in the lives of others. If you would like to apply for funding for, or make us aware of, a deserving cause please email info@rt160.org.uk
